

Laurie Kalda

Type: Breast Cancer

“I’m a huge believer in mammograms.” says Laurie, “Do not skip them!” Laurie is a champion of early detection because back in 2000, her doctor caught the tumor in her breast at an early stage. The fact that she lost a sister to kidney cancer because the cancer had spread so far by the time her sister was diagnosed only fuels her desire to spread the message of early detection. Being an oncology nurse at the Avera Cancer Institute, Laurie says, “I feel I have somewhat of a bond with my patients now.”

The American Cancer Society presents: “Snapshot of Survival”
Photo sponsored by: Avera Cancer Institute, Photography by: Jael Trieb, Brookings